

Ringtones add a fun and personal touch to today's cell phones

Ringtones and mobile phones go together like peanut butter and jelly.

Ringtones and mobile phones go together like peanut butter and jelly. They can easily set your mood, voice an opinion or remind you of days gone by. What does your ringtone say about you, or the people who call your mobile phone? Just about any tone you are looking for is now available, so let's find out how to use your ring tone to express yourself.

Are You Feeling Beautiful Today?

What better way to be reminded of how gorgeous you are than with the popular ringtone "You're Beautiful" by James Blunt. Maybe you need something a bit more upbeat, try "Pretty Woman" by Roy Orbison to turn heads in any crowd. Or say it with a bit of attitude using the "Bootylicious" by Destiny's Child ringtone, or "Don't Cha" by the Pussycat Dolls.

Want the World to Go Away?

The day to day noise that you're presented with can be a bit overwhelming at times. How about a ringtone that gives you a bit of relief. How about Green Day's "Wake Me Up When September Ends" (perfect for this month), and use "Bad Day" by Daniel Powter to cover the rest of the year.

Identify Your Callers

Since ringtones can be assigned to individual callers on your phone, there's no limit to how you express what you think of the the people who call your mobile.

Got a Girl Who's Hot?

There's no better way to let you know your girlfriend (or best friend who's a girl) is calling, than with the popular "Shawty" ringtone by Plies and T-Pain, or "Beautiful Girls" by Sean Kingston (more appropriate for a crush). While boyfriends may take comfort in knowing Rihanna's "Umbrella" ringtone is how you feel about your relationship.

Just Break Up?

Let her know that he or she has really lost out with a ringtone that gives the dirty as to what went wrong. Kanye West's Gold Digger might make the right statement if they were draining your pockets (or the gas in your car). Guys, the all time classic "No Woman No Cry" by legendary Bob Marley may say it all. While girls might find that "Scrubs" by TLC leaves no room for questions.

Phone Stalkers Calling?

If you have a phone stalker (or stalkers) you might want to download Usher's "U Got It Bad" as a warning to not pick up.

As you can see, mobile ringtones have just what you're looking for to set the mood, identify who's calling and give you that daily boost. With over a million to choose from, representing all types of music, you're sure to find one that perfectly represents you and your callers.
