

Super Bowl Party Planning and Gift Ideas

Looking for new ideas for planning your Super Bowl Party? Gourmet entrepreneur Margo Saunders has a list of ways to spice up your Super Bowl party menu.

Margo Saunders, CEO of [b]Edible Gifts Plus[/b], knows how to throw a party. Margo's passion for party planning and unique gifts spawned her online gourmet foods business that ships fresh treats across the United States every day.

Margo has some suggestions for Super Bowl Party planners (and gift givers) this year that will add a sweet touch and great fun to your party or Super Bowl gift giving. She suggests that football fans order [b]custom decorated photo cookies[/b] that can display the photos or team logo of your favorite NFL teams or players. Photo cookies of all sorts, including Graham Crackers, Fortune Cookies, Oreos, Brownies, Biscotti, Sugar Cookies, Rice Krispy Treats, etc., create a great focal point for a dessert party table.

Instead of serving ordinary popcorn, consider a tin of the most amazing [b]gourmet flavored popcorn[/b] including Margo's best sellers: caramel covered popcorn and chocolate covered popcorn. These gourmet creations will be a fan favorite; a finely balanced combination of sweet and salty flavors. Once you experience Margo's gourmet flavored popcorn you will never pop your own kernels again. The popcorn tins come in various assortments and sizes so you can find the perfect tin for your Super Bowl Party or Super Bowl gift.

Apple pie and ice cream, beer and pretzels, etc. are certainly among Americans' favorite snack food pairings – so Margo suggests you kick up the latter with [b]gourmet chocolate covered pretzels[/b]. Anyone can serve a bag of pretzels – but your guests won't soon forget your gourmet pretzels covered in dark, milk or white chocolate for months to come. Not drinking beer? Margo reminds wine lovers that chocolate covered pretzels are great with a glass of wine as you kick back and cheer during the big game.

This year, bring the ball into the end zone with great food and gourmet treats from Edible Gifts Plus. Place your orders early to guarantee on-time delivery.
